Compulsory REVISION comments
Minor REVISION comments
Optional/General comments	The study proved that in actuality the role of the majority of the female cassava farmers cannot help to lower the technical inefficiency in cassava farming in Oyo State Nigeria. There are many reasons that can be found from the research, among them are variability in the price of cassava, low productivity, pest and diseases, poor access to market, inadequate storage facilities, and poor access to a production credit. Besides that farm size, planting material, Agrochemical, herbicide, fertilizer, labour and the variables educational level, and membership of farmers' association were the variables affecting the technical inefficiency of female cassava farmers in the study area are also important and significant factors affecting cassava production in the study area. For the purpose of identifying the supporting factors and weakening factors that affect the technical inefficiency, it is suggested that the variables were classified in broader terms, which then may be categorized into more specific characters.
