Compulsory REVISION comments	Review Report Universal Health Coverage: A Catalyst for Achieving 2030 Sustainable Development Goals 1. Summary This paper looks at the case of making universal health coverage part of the Sustainability Development Goals (SDG3 – Good Health and Well-being). It is a new approach that would help the world support the current generation in a "development that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs". 2. General Remarks The manuscript presents how to achieve universal health coverage, which would help to improve health outcomes and help achieve Sustainable Development Goals 1, 2 and 3. The author tries further to emphasise, for example, countries in Sub-Saharan Africa with health problems. This study aims to identify universal health coverage implementation strategies adopted by different countries and how the methods can contribute to achieving the 2030 SDG target format with an appreciated effort as it attempts to suggest or provide a standard supplement to sustainable development. 3. Constructive criticism Although the paper provides a bold initiative of how the world could be helped, the article does not offer financial advice on how the case could be supported. Nevertheless, it tries to provide a bold initiative that the world should take seriously with advice.
