Compulsory REVISION comments	Enzyme activity studies such as florisil alcohol dehydrogenase are interesting, as they provide novel and relevant information to world scientific knowledge, however, the authors in the introduction do not adequately establish the problem and the justification, which compromises the quality of the study. The methodology is adjusted to what you want to investigate. The results are adequate and sufficiently presented. The discussion should be expanded into arguments. Bibliographic references must be updated and adjusted to the requirements of form or style. Publication is suggested, once the suggestions are taken.
