Compulsory REVISION comments	This work is interesting for food processing, however, the discussion in the result should be more reason about why? it's to be as the present data. Explain with adsorption theory or osmotic replacement. The author should present the strong point of the research work that how it different from others, the new idea in processing and why must be the ODMWD technique.
Minor REVISION comments	Some part must be change(may be or not), as the graph: the author should compare the behavior of thichnes of pineapple slice in one graph as in Fig.1 but separate the brix condition so the graph will clear in compare slice in each conditions.
Optional/General comments	Title name is quite good. The author wrote the paper in good english language. However, the introduction part was too long thus the paper was also too much pages.
