

Editor's Comment:

I have gone through all attachments.

1. Autos did not address all comments from reviewers which were very demanding and could improve this article.

2. In my observations after going through the article I realized;

a) In the abstract: The content of the abstract contains general information that does not encourage a reader to keep on reading the article

b) In the introduction: The word pollution appeared once in the whole manuscript. No data to support any pollution induced by acid-base indicators.

c) The gap of research is too general and needs supportive data.

3. Other comments are in the revised manuscript that I've attached here.

Conclusively, the article is not publishable unless after critically responding to my comments.
