Optional/General comments	The study has tried to find out the relationship between FDI inflows and export performance in Bangladesh using the annual time series data from 1995 to 2020. The findings of the study have shown the significant relationship between FDI inflows and export performance during the period under study. The methodology adopted for the study is good and findings have lot of practical relevance. However, it is suggested that the review of literature should be content-wise instead of author-wise, which have some duplications.
