

Editor's Comment:

The authors have not made all the corrections indicated by the reviewers. Abstract need to really be rewritten. The authors should precise the objective of the research is for what. The authors should describe the parameters measured as well as the tools used to briefly explain the material and method used. A conclusion is missing in this section. The authors should explain what could be the application of the research results or findings. Introduction should be improved by adding some of the authors' research findings on the subject of seed germination of this species to justify why this research is relevant.
