Compulsory REVISION comments	Dear Editor, The results of the paper titled 'Cultural, molecular and genetic variability of Ustilagoidea virens causing rice false smut disease' are not clearly presented, and the abstract does not adequately summarize the entire study. The paper appears to be primarily reviews of earlier works, with inadequate reporting approach. The methodology lacks clarity and coherence. The conclusions and discussions are utterly unworthy of a research article. Therefore, I advise against accepting the work in its format unless corrections are being made. However, a complete rewritten paper may qualify the manuscript for another round of peer reviews if author(s) can produce a quality scientific paper.
