The work presented is of importance in the field of veterinary medicine; however, you must take care of the form, style, syntax and give order and coherence to what is intended to be demonstrated 2. The title of the manuscript seems appropriate. 3. It is suggested to improve the writing of the summary, taking care of the order of each "section" and of the ideas. 4. The subsections and structure are well marked, however the numbering presented in the manuscript should be reviewed taking care of the style. 5. The work can be improved both in substance and in the form of writing. 6. References appear to be sufficient; however, they must be written taking care of the style/form (according to the guidelines suggested by the journal), both in each of the paragraphs they support, and at the end of the list of references. Review the wording of the information, errors and conditions are marked in the document (colored) that the authors must review, analyze and make the corresponding modifications. The document presents some writing details (order, syntax, style) on which it is suggested to review and work. In the method section it is suggested to place what is the basis of the test carried out (colorimetric test?). Review the conclusions, give them order, coherence and be concise, considering which conclusions are really those that emanate from the manuscript. Review and complete the information corresponding to the marked reference (since it is incomplete). References must be listed at the end of the manuscript and numbered in the order that they appear in the text. Every reference referred in the text must also present in the reference list and vice versa. In the text, citations should be indicated by the reference number in brackets [3]. Necessary suggestions to carry out. Reference to a journal: 1. Hilly M, Adams ML, Nelson SC.
