

Editor's Comment:

Sincerely, according to the opinions of the respected reviewers, although the subject is relatively good, it should be further investigated in order to be accepted in the journal. The following can be considered:

1. The discussion and conclusion section is very superficial and general, which needs more development and discussion, and it is necessary to compare the results obtained with similar articles and works in this field and verify the results in order to have a higher usability. .
2. In a magazine that we are at the beginning stage and our goal is scientific and technical development and quality, an article with five references is not interesting..
3. With the small volume and generalization done in this article.. it is more similar to a summary of a regional report.. therefore, more work should be done on the article.. Sorry, with the current conditions and the above reasons, it is not recommended to accept the article.

Editor's Details:

Dr. Abolfazl Azadi
Assistant Professor, Khuzestan Agricultural and Natural Resources Research and Education Center, AREEO, Ahvaz, Iran.