Compulsory REVISION comments	The abstract is filled with a lot of tautology, and it is advisable to redo it as a whole.  Hepatocellular carcinoma is considered the second common reason of death from cancer worldwide and the fifth most common cancer in men and the ninth in women and it is the estimated to be responsible for around 745,000 deaths in 2012 due it is association with bad prognosis - available on new data?!?  The conclusion is too long, repeating much of the statement, it is strongly recommended to revise!
Minor REVISION comments	Nowhere is it mentioned the MELD-score.
Optional/General comments	Excluding the problems described above, the article is very well structured. The lack of personal experience on the presented topic is not to be neglected .
