

Editor's Comment:

Part of major remarks from the Reviewers have been taken in consideration in the revised version of the manuscript. Yet, some important recommendations of Reviewers have still remained neglected by the Authors and should, however, imperatively be addressed properly.

For example, it has been asked to Authors that they explain the signification of "Rabi crop", a notion clear for Indian readers but which may well escape to foreign readers understanding.

More generally, I ask the, Authors, please go through Reviewers main recommendations, once again, and actually make required corrections (or, else, justify why they are not taken into account).

Once these are done, the revised manuscript seems OK for publication in IJECC.
