

Editor's Comment:

In the Methodology part, the methods under consideration, it is necessary to indicate the equations and it is necessary to note the importance of the members of the equation systems. To prove why this method is better. To understand why is better.

In "Conclusion" you need to specify numerical comparative resulting data.

If the author can, let him give recommendations or suggestions to the real sector of the economy and the government?

You can publish this article after I correct the specified revision.
