I commend the author for selecting such a unique and important topic for their research. The investigation into the effect of different training systems on the growth, yield, and quality of bottle gourd (Lagenaria siceraria L.) under Prayagraj Agro-climatic conditions holds significant relevance for the scientific community. By examining the effects of different training systems, the author's work has the potential to shed light on the most effective and efficient cultivation practices for bottle gourd in Prayagraj's specific agro-climatic conditions. This information can prove invaluable for researchers, agronomists, and farmers seeking to enhance their crop production and optimize the quality of bottle gourd. 2. yes 3. I have thoroughly reviewed the abstract and find it to be well-written and engaging. The abstract effectively summarizes the key points of the research, providing a clear overview of the study. The research topic is of great interest and holds significant value in the field. I recommend that the author to include a brief discussion on the different types/ treatments of training systems in the abstract section, employed in their study by highlighting the various training systems utilized, the abstract can provide readers with valuable insights into the methodology and experimental setup. 4. Yes 5. Yes 6. I suggest the author to increase the reference section upto 25 in number.
