The health and welfare of cows contributes to maintaining a good reproductive activity, along with nutrition and environmental conditions. The use of the Holstein breed or their crossbreeds in India could be a problem due to the high temperatures to which the Holstein is not adapted. The use of special technology in reproduction can facilitate obtaining good results. I personally use an ultrasound and to detect the optimal moment of AI I use a Draminski heat detector which is cheap and accurate. The title are suitable. The abstract is perfect exposed. The structure of the manuscript is clearly and intelligible From scientific point of view, the current review of reproductive issues are welcome. The references are in accordance with the issue of the study.
