

Editor's Comment:

I read the reviewers' comments and the replied by the author. I found that reviewers had given positive comments and most comments were addressed by the author. However, there are comments raised by reviewer Zai which is very critical, but failed to address by the author. The reviewer has questioned the author may be using only one sample in this study and he had suggested a minimum number of 10 samples, which the author failed to do so. In fact, the author not even revealed the number of participant in the study eventhough was question by the reviewer. In my point of view, the results obtained in this study is not reliable due to the small sample size. The author could increase the sample size and reveal the number of participant in the article.

Thus, I would recommend that the article should not be consider to publish in the journal.
