

Editor's Comment:

I went through the received review material and I cannot make any editorial decision before the authors address issues with references.

One of the reviewers actually pointed out this issue (Please correct citation and add year of publication) but, while the authors stated that it was properly addressed, I regret that it is not the case.

Apart from years missing in many reference citations, the format in the references list is inconsistent and many references are incomplete; the case of reference 23, where the full reference seems to consist of just one single word (vida), is emblematic in this regard.

Therefore, authors are invited to check carefully the manuscript and adjust references before resubmitting it again for my consideration.
