

Editor's Comment:

The subject of the article is very important and has practical value.

I have few comments to the article:

1. The introduction should be more scientific
2. the description of the RTE samples is very limited, must be improved. are those types of RTE products most typical for the market?
3. the tables/figures lack in statistics
4. what law regulations and microbiological criteria were used by the Authors in results analysis?
