

Editor's Comment:

I suggest the authors make a few minor changes before the paper can be accepted. Currently it is very large in size, and the authors may cut it short by deleting some of the literature reviews. They are presented in an individual manner at present, maybe amalgamate them together. This is applicable for the findings section as well where there were individual pie charts which could be collated under one table or two. The authors can also move the 'research significance' at the end of the manuscript to refer to implications of this study.
