Okay 2. Yes 3. You need to detail more assertively the results of the research that were not explained, I suggest that you redo the results, based on the findings obtained by the research method, then point out the positions of each participant to identify if there is a correlation between the academy and the respondents still identifying why each answer was the same or divergent. 4. I suggest deepening the method, and the results containing tables that can identify the model adopted, the profiles of each respondent and also the reasons for each one with statistical weight and the questions as they were constructed to better present the research; 5. Yes, but you will need to make adjustments to the result and methodology 6. Okay
