Optional/General comments	This research is interesting because nectarines are not yet widely used as ingredients in cereals and local fruit juices. However, I have a minor recommendation that authors move the statement in the conclusion, which means the aim of research, to the final section of the introduction. And in the summary section, it should be written as a conclusion or overall result of the work or how it can be further developed.
