

Editor's Comment:

Regarding the above-sent paper:

Interesting, focused on a sensitive issue of this period.

1. In Conclusions (also at the plural) to be specified what is the increase of the income of this category of people and a quick comparison with the income of the rest of people or employees.

References are, of course, wrong written: in the alphabetical order of the last name of the authors and, immediately after the year of publishing. WHO reference at the end, after the last author name.

The first reference is Aitken et al. (2022)....., the next one is Botha, H. J. (2012)..... and, the last one is Vandershurwen and Nhene (2021)..... The references are with OECD and The United Republic of Tanzania, also at the end after the last author name.

Ok for publishing .
