

Editor's Comment:

The article is fine and based on the peer review reports the authors have carried out some changes. As it is a review article, the number of references is inadequate. Even for a mini-review article the number of references should be increased. The authors have pointed out the different operating systems, their characteristics features and their shortcomings. All these are to be backed up by references to papers in the area.

The article is good, however kindly see to it that a comprehensive study is carried out for a review article. After these changes are made, the article can be accepted for publication after attending to grammatical errors and spelling mistakes.

Editor's Details:

Dr. G. Sudheer
Professor, GVP College of Engineering for Women, Madhurawada, India.