If you have suggestion of additional references, please mention in the review form. (Apart from above mentioned 6 points, reviewers are free to provide additional suggestions/comments)	The manuscript holds significant importance for the scientific community. It brings attention to the rotavirus risk in relation to food and water safety in Latin America, addressing a pressing concern that affects public health. By shedding light on this topic, the manuscript can contribute to the existing body of scientific knowledge, help researchers and policymakers develop effective prevention strategies, and ultimately improve the well-being of communities in Latin America. Title is not looking good it should be "Exploring the Rotavirus Risk in Latin American Food and Water" or Yes it is OK Yes The author should consider updating or replacing outdated references with more recent and relevant sources. By incorporating up-to-date references, the manuscript can ensure that the information presented aligns with the latest scientific advancements and findings. This will enhance the credibility and reliability of the manuscript, making it more valuable and impactful for the scientific community.
Minor REVISION comments 1. Is language/English quality of the article suitable for scholarly communications?	The article exhibits a commendable level of English writing quality, making it well-suited for scholarly communications. The language used throughout the manuscript demonstrates a strong command of grammar, syntax, and vocabulary. Moreover, the article effectively communicates its research findings and analysis in a clear and coherent manner.
Optional/General comments	It would be beneficial to include information about the transmission of the virus through food. This addition would provide a comprehensive overview of the topic. By highlighting the significance of food as a potential route of transmission, the abstract will capture the attention of readers and emphasize the importance of addressing food safety measures in relation to the spread of the virus.
