I read closely the material you sent me. My editorial decision is to publish as is 2023/SAJSSE/105412.

I suggest revised title: "Unraveling the Multifaceted Dynamics of Healthcare Expenditure: Statistical questionnaire study in Malappuram, Kerala, India."

The article is an impressive research article.

The article is well-written, most interesting and important. The authors' main conclusions make good common sense to me.

The results suggest that certain demographic factors, including religion, income, marital status, occupation, age, gender, and family structure, are associated with variations in health expenditure patterns among individuals in the Malappuram district. These findings provide valuable insights into how these demographic characteristics influence individuals' healthcare spending behaviors.
