Regarding the above-sent paper:

Interesting approach of the tariffs within a national economy.

1. Keywords are missing.
2. The last part is entitled Conclusions (though it is one single final idea).
3. However, I have a concern: a positive and direct relationship between tariffs and economic growth. Agree. Therefore, I don't understand the idea of maintaining tariffs barriers (of course, the GDP is increasing), but the trade must be allowed to function freely. If it's about the foreign trade (as I think), ok, customs have to apply the appropriate taxes/tariffs for higher revenues to the budget.

OK for publishing and adding my colleagues' remarks.
