

Editor's Comment:

I recommend the author revise this paper before proceeding further.

1. The methodology should be detailed. The study uses a survey of respondents, but the study lacks information about collecting the data and selecting the criteria. The selection of questions and other parameters of the survey is not certain. The survey questions should be discussed — why are these particular questions used?
2. The discussion component of the study is missing. The Discussion section (or at least the discussion element of the results) must demonstrate the novelty of the findings, the author should discuss the differences of the findings from those made by other scholars, as well as point out the similarities.

The author extensively uses future tense — «the study will», etc. The study has already been completed, hasn't it? The author should revise the text accordingly.

Editor's Details:

Dr. Vasilii Erokhin
School of Economics and Management, Harbin Engineering University, China.