The revised version appears more articulate and well-structured. While the literature review discussion is thorough, the tabular presentation for the comparison might benefit from being replaced with a paragraph format. Typically, bullet points or medium-length text are suitable for tables, but extensive text is often better presented in paragraph form. However, this ultimately depends on the author's preference and style. If the author believes that the tabular format enhances clarity and organization, then it is acceptable to retain it.
