Compulsory REVISION comments	-there is lake of interpretation a of result, Your results are not clearly presente and there are not statistique. You should five of all presente and interpret your result -your abstract is to long you should reduice it - there is not keys word in your document -Introduction doe not have part. It is wrote in one paragraph - There is no control group in your test. How are you going to make comparison - Each result should be clearly explain	All the results were interpreted in the discussion section. I used Instat GraghPad in preparing my statistical analysis for the antioxidants and antibacterial results which is seen in the manuscript. The quantitative Phytochemistry results are not in statistic because I expressed the results in their percentages. The results are presented in tables and charts, then interpreted at the discussion section. I tried to ensure I cover every aspect of the work that is why the abstract is long. Many plants samples and experiments model was used. I have added keyword. The acute toxicity test was used to determine the ranges of doses that is safe for the animals. The protocol I used followed Dietrich lorke method and did not use control group. Ok. I have described the various plants gotten from ethno-botanical survey
Minor REVISION comments	-the article is too long	Ok.
Optional/General comments	The qualitative test of saponine: You can use for the qualitative test the method below e Yadav et al., 2014	Ok.
