

Editor's Comment:

Authors should review the abstract, which is very extensive. The abstract should not exceed more than 250-300 words. In this case, they should reduce the 1st part of the framework and the results should be only the main ones.

There is information that for an article should not be included, for example, putting the sample calculation formula. Only its bibliographical reference should be cited.

On the other hand, there are important chapters in an article, which in this case are very little developed, such as the Conclusion.

In the Results chapter, the results tables should be integrated with the descriptive text and not separated sequentially at the end of the text.

It is not clear why Figure 1 appears at the end of the discussion chapter.

The references should all be revised because they need to be standardized according to the APA Standard and some supplemented, for example:

- Muraya, M. W., Ngari, L.K., &Gathungu, G.K. (2020)
- Mwangome M, Ngari M, Bwahere P, Kabore P, McGrath M, Kerac M, et al. (2019)

I believe that the article is not yet of the necessary quality for publication.
