There should be a case report pertaining to a single case, or series of cases with similarities in some way to be grouped in a series. Here all cases are totally different. Hence clubbing them in one heading makes the manuscript confusing and indiscernible. Hence authors should discuss each case individually.	We sincerely appreciate your insightful feedback on our manuscript titled "Anesthetic Management of Rare Diseases: Insights from Four Compelling Case Reports." We have carefully considered your suggestion to discuss each case individually. However, we would like to highlight a nuanced aspect of our approach. The deliberate choice to present four distinct cases in our study aims to showcase the diversity in clinical manifestations within rare diseases. Each of these cases provides a unique perspective on the specific challenges encountered in the anesthetic management of rare diseases. Rather than grouping similar cases, we aimed to underscore the inherent variability in these uncommon conditions. By discussing each case individually, our intention is to emphasize the need for a nuanced understanding of pathophysiology, potential complications, and interactions with anesthetic agents within the diverse landscape of rare diseases. Thus, our approach seeks to illustrate how anesthetic management must be tailored specifically to each rare pathology. We hope this explanation clarifies our editorial choice and highlights the intentional nature of our approach. We are open to any additional suggestions to enhance the clarity of our manuscript and are grateful for the opportunity to address your feedback.
Minor REVISION comments 1. Is language/English quality of the article suitable for scholarly communications?
