

Editor's Comment:

The author(s) made some of the amendments suggested by the referees but they did not solve key problems, namely those related to the design of the research.

No information is provided on sample, interviews, and data analysis. No information and justification is provided on secondary data sources selection criteria.

In addition, the authors rely on nonscientific secondary sources (e.g. Wikipedia and Google) instead of official statistical sources or scientific papers. Besides, systematic information/data from interviews is not provided.

References writing and English language would still need a careful revision.

I am sorry, but I do not think that this manuscript can be published in a scientific journal. My decision is that it should be rejected in its present form.
