Optional/General comments	The article includes the compilation of the existing scientific literature on the subject, but it is missing a harmony between different components of the farming systems. Why such alternatives have appeared as regenerative agriculture, organic agriculture? What are the reasons for such different approaches in all over the world? Author(s) should analyse the main differences between natural ecosystems and agroecosystems. This will turn lights to many manmade problems and how to solve them. We should mimic nature but not to control it. We should consider the other paradigm of agriculture intensification
