

Editor's Comment:

Authors should be given another chance to revise the manuscript exactly according to the reviewers comments. Since, in its current form, it is very hard to accept the manuscript for publication in this journal. Accepting such type of manuscript (current form) will certainly hamper the reputation of this journal. Being a editorial member, I should say that send the manuscript back to the author for revision. It is very difficult for me to differentiate between the status of original and revised manuscript. It is also difficult to identify the type of manuscript : an original research article or review article. I am recommending to send the manuscript again to the authors for a fresh submission.
