

Editor's Comment:

I have read the paper and referees' comments.

My comments are as follows.

////

This article analyses the discourses on the pastoral Maasai community and attempts to clarify their position.

It is interesting in terms of its problem, methodology and relation to previous studies.

However, the present manuscript is not easy to read for the general reader, so the following additions are necessary for publication.

1. basic data on the geographical distribution, population, language and religion of the Maasai is needed. A map of the Mvomero district in Tanzania would help the reader understand the surrounding environment of the Maasai people.
2. the eight document analysed in the CDA model need to be described in a table. It is difficult to read the explanations in the text, section 2.2.
3. in the last section (Conclusion and recommendation), no previous studies are cited at all. It is necessary to explain in this section how the findings of this study could contribute to previous studies.

Editor's Details:

Dr. Shiro Horiuchi
Hannan University, Japan.