Since independence, India has endeavoured to improve the quality of secondary education through a series of landmark educational reforms. This paper provides an in-depth analysis of these reform measures and their effectiveness, highlighting the critical role of secondary education in nurturing the youth and shaping the future of the country. Through a critical assessment, it aims to provide useful reflections and insights for achieving better quality secondary education. 2.0 The title of the article is appropriate 3.0 The article provides a comprehensive overview of the development of education in India, which has taken place over several decades, and secondary education in particular has grown significantly since independence. From the report of the Committee on Secondary Education in 1948 to the New Education Policy 2020, India has endeavoured to enhance the quality and accessibility of secondary education. These policy initiatives have not only shaped the current landscape of secondary education, but have also produced a large number of talented people for India, laying a solid foundation for the future development of the country. It is suggested that you can detail the failures and successes in the education reform process and give examples in the text to increase the persuasiveness of the essay. 4.0 The chapters and structure of the manuscript are appropriate 5.0 I think the manuscript is scientifically correct 6.0 With regard to the adequacy and up-to-date nature of the references and the need for additional references, the following are my recommendations: Adequacy: From the existing reference articles provided, the literature is already grounded in the overview and analysis of the development of education in India, including the historical lineage of the Indian education system, policy implementation, and the current status and challenges of secondary education. However, in order to ensure the comprehensiveness and depth of the study, further addition of relevant literature could be considered. Updateness: some of the literature in the existing referenced articles were published earlier, and although they are important for understanding the historical lineage and current status of the development of education in India, it is recommended that some research findings from recent years be added in order to ensure that the study is up-to-date and current. Suggested references to be added: Specifics and implementation of education policy documents and reports issued by the Government of India in recent years, such as the New Education Policy 2020. Recent research reports on the status and challenges of secondary education in India, which usually contain the latest data and case studies. Assessment reports of international organisations or research institutes on the development of education in India, which are usually highly authoritative and objective. How to find more references: Use Google Scholar to search for relevant literature on educational development in India, especially research findings from the last five years. Check the official websites of education departments and educational institutions of the Government of India for the latest policy documents and reports. Refer to other academic articles and books that study educational development in India for research developments and trends in the field.
Minor REVISION comments <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Is language/English quality of the article suitable for scholarly communications? 	appropriate scholarly communication
