For a more effective representation of your work, consider incorporating unique terms that capture the essence of your research, beyond those already used in the title.</li> <li>The introduction could benefit from a more specific statement of the research gap and the primary objective of this study. Ideally, these crucial details should be conveyed in the concluding paragraph of the introduction.</li> <li>The section on materials and methods requires additional detail about the research process. Also, it's generally recommended to avoid stating the aim of the experiment in this section. As such, consider removing the first paragraph from this section.</li> <li>The manuscript lacks clear information about the statistical analysis method employed in the study. Please specify the statistical techniques used for data analysis.</li> <li>Ensure that the full form of any abbreviation is provided when it's first introduced in the text. This will enhance readability and comprehension for your readers.</li> <li>The reference list could be enriched by including more recent and relevant literature. This will not only update the context of your research but also demonstrate your engagement with the latest studies in your field.</li> <li>The conclusion drawn from the study could be strengthened. Please consider providing a more robust conclusion that captures the key findings, potential limitations, and opportunities for future research.</li> </ul>
