

Editor's Comment:

Accepted after minor revision

I have reviewed the reviewer's comments and the author's corrections to the manuscript titled "Contemporary Farming and Associated Consequences of Climate Change". In my opinion, the following comments by the reviewer do not appear to have been substantively corrected. If the author makes his/her work more scientific by analyzing the scanned literature information the study can be published.

- It is also better if the author discusses the significance of his study
- Scientifically, the work is just a compilation of a literature review and lacks scientific input. Although the content is correct but not comprehensive.
