Yes, manuscript important for scientific community. This research paper provides a detailed analysis of the economic benefits and costs of climate change adaptation strategies among agro pastoralists in Tanzania. It offers valuable insights into the financial viability of planned adaptation measures compared to traditional practices. The findings underscore the importance of promoting crop and livestock diversification and capacitating farmers in effective adaptation strategies, aiding policymakers, extension agents, and researchers in making informed decisions to enhance resilience to climate change in dryland areas. 2. Yes, title of the article suitable. 3. Yes, abstract of the article comprehensive but, not covering the any areas of risk management. It is better to include that. 4. Yes, subsections and structure of the manuscript appropriate, Authors should add a location map of study area materials &amp; methods. 5. Yes, manuscript is scientifically correct Furthermore, there is no "Literature Review" section in the chapter. An appropriate Literature Review section having a brief overview of similar previous studies and relevant works on the research topic, should be included. 6.
