

Editor's Comment:

I have carefully gone through the reviewers comments and the revised manuscript. Author has not attended to many points raised by reviewer 1.

There are a lot of grammar and editorial mistakes in the manuscript. Still there are scientific names which are not italic. Gram is a scientist's name. Wherever the word comes it should start with "G". Still materials and methods are not detailed enough. Results are not graphically presented. Author has presented results in a few tables in a careless manner. Instead of tables the author can present results in graphs.

Although the author has used statistics none of the results are presented statistically. Sample numbers, number of replicates are missing.

Although this study is scientifically important, the author has not conducted the study scientifically.

I do not think this article meets the standards of the journal to be published.
