

Editor's Comment:

I have examined the paper and the reviewers comments. The topic is important and is of big interest for scientific community and for food companies. I substantially agree with the second reviewer that states: "The manuscript contains interesting scientific information. However, this information is superficial for some parameters. Furthermore, in my opinion, it would be interesting to focus in this manuscript on recent data (last ten years) on HPP in food processing. For most of the sections, the authors are not appropriate".

These suggestions have not been addressed properly in the revised manuscript. So I advise the authors to do a major revision of the manuscript with recent references and also to add one or more tables/figures to summarize the content.

Editor's Details:

Dr. Raffaella Preti
Sapienza University of Rome, Italy.