Optional/General comments	The research is very relevant to the area of study. Nyandarua County that host OI kalou is one of the food baskets of Kenya with Irish potatoes being of the common crop grown in the county. However recently the output has been greatly affected by the climate change and variability in the region. Application of agricultural technologies is one methods of climate change adaptation to crop farming. The manuscript is suitable for publication upon making the minor corrections highlighted in the main document
