Is the language/English quality of the article suitable for scholarly communications?	Not really
Optional/General comments	Introduction is too shallow. Many of the statements were not referenced. Make your introduction cohesive with 4-5 paragraphs, making a case for why you decided to conduct this study State the aim/objective of the study at the end of the introduction. There is nothing like a descriptive study design. If it is a cross-sectional design, mention it What are the inclusion and exclusion criteria for this study e.g age If your study is on the knowledge and perception of tobacco, why are you using a = for proportion of current tobacco users to calculate your sample size You really don't have to write out the full calculation of the sample size. The formula, parameters and final sample size values are sufficient. Snowballing is not a multi-stage sampling technique. Use the right terminology Cite the validation of your questionnaire "will be used" - why are you using future tense when you have already conducted this research? Data collected in July 2016, 8 years ago might not be representative of the current status-quo Please separate the result from the discussion section. In your discussion section, compare your findings to similar papers and discuss the implications for your study. Also state the possible limitations and strengths of your study
