Optional/General comments	Author uses NDHS 2018 data although NDHS 2023 data is available. For table no 2 subgroup, the author did not explain how to calculate sub group like North Urban Rich. Before run the bivariate analysis, author should establish the association between dependent and independent variables using suitable statistic. Why did author choose only North region as the reference value in Bivariate analysis (logistic regression)? Author divided two major regions, so at first reference values will be selected from two major regions then use multiple regression to see most predicted region The regional distribution should be divided into one scale. The regional distribution between Table 3 and 4 and Figure 2 are different. Author should give latitude and longitude on the map to make it scientific
