

Editor's Comment:

The manuscript, in its present form, is not readied for publication acceptance. The authors are encouraged to revise, re-write, re-structure, and re-submit an improved manuscript for further review process.

1. This paper writes like a thesis report. The title should be modified as:
2. Women's behavior and living standard before and after joining the self-help group (SHG) in Santna District, Madhya Pradesh, India
3. The abstract should be re-written with the purpose, objective, method, results and implications of this study.
4. The small tables and bulleted statements in the method section may be changed to descriptive sentences and arranged in paragraphs instead.
5. All the listed references must be referred to in the text.
6. Similarly, with all the tables, must be referred to also in the text.
7. The same data must not be shown in table form and at the same time in graphical form.
8. The "statement" related to behaviour column in Table 1 and statement related to living standard column in Table 2 may be changed to "question" instead.
9. The conclusion section must emphasize significant result findings and the practical implications (contributions) derived from this study.
10. Improve the English language.
11. The format of the reference listing must conform to the requirement of the Journal. Do not use "et al.". Instead, have to list out all the authors. Do not include the findings of each reference, just the authors, title, and source.
