

Editor's Comment:

Unfortunately, the author has no change or revision to the revised paper!

Because the number of pregnant women and live births may vary according to months and years, rates should be used instead of absolute numbers in all text, tables, and figures. For example, stunting rate should be used instead of the number of stunting cases; low birth weight rate should be used instead of the number of low birth weight cases, maternal mortality rate should be used instead of the number of maternal mortality cases. The author should seek help from an epidemiologist and statistician.

Editor's Details:

Dr. Cihad Dundar
Professor, Ondokuz Mayıs University, Turkey