I believe, that authors should take into account the recommendations of the reviewer 1. As they stated, their paper is »an attempt«. They probably wanted to say, that they are conducting a pilot study. If so, this should be clearly stated in the paper: the description of the pilot study and the objectives of the pilot study. There are several literature sources, that describe in details the pilot study approach.

I would also suggest the authors to take into account the recommendation regarding the most up-to-date literature resources, despite this may change the structure of a paper a bit. Additionally, there are some resources in the list with no publishing year.

I suggest the authors to improve the paper according to the reviewer's justified recommendations.
