

Editor's Comment:

The manuscript still has numerous errors for publication. Some corrections have been addressed as suggested by reviewers but major areas of concern are grammatical errors and writing proper sentences that convey the message. Suggest further corrections (support corrections given by Dr. Flora Shah who emphasized they are major and should be addressed) as follows:

1. The abstract still requires further working - grammar, and to include aim of study and conclusion.
2. Results section: no need to include figures 1 to 4 since table 1 gives adequate results for that section, similarly figure 5; tables 2-6 can be combined into one, as well as tables 10-12; statistical analysis of results to compare the control, standard and developed products.
3. The conclusion is mixed up and needs to show the outcome of the study.

After effecting these changes, then the manuscript can be considered for publication.
