Compulsory REVISION comments
Minor REVISION comments	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. The author should explain the specific evidence that the PA is really caused by appendicitis. While acute diverticulitis of the caecum or colon ascendens can also cause PA, as it is supported by the concomitant occurrence of right sided pleural effusion which travelling upward through the retroperitoneal space from the psoas to the pleural cavity. 2. Please explain the relationship why acute appendicitis can cause psoas abscess, since appendix is located intraperitoneal. 3. What should the author do for the appendix after the patient was discharge home. 4. What is wrong with this patient why the appendicitis can spread further to the psoas, could it be prevented ?
