Optional/General comments	In this paper the author(s) present the study on the inclusion of the financial index on a country's welfare, in particular in Nigeria. The motivation is clear, justified with some recent academic and government data. The theoretical framework alongside the research methodology are clearly presented. Even though it seems that the method is quite repetitive in nature, the application to this particular context seems novel.  The statistical method to justify the result seems valid. Overall, the paper seems complete. Just refining the presentation will improve the readability of the paper.
